GETTING READY for skiing

La Niña, the weather condition that brought us an epic winter, promises to return with a vengeance this winter.

WATER SKI until October

There are still few water ski trips left of the season — what some of us consider the best time of the year. We set camp up on our own beach on the Colorado River, 10 miles east of Needles. Equipment and instructions are included. Details, dates and cost can be found on page 17.

COUNCIL galas

Are you ready to kick off the snow season. The indications are that it’s going to be another epic season. It wouldn’t seem right if the season didn’t start off with a gala or two.

This year both LA and San Diego had added a twist to their galas. There will still be the annual Man and Woman of the Year crowning. LA will have their usual raffle to benefit The Unrecables.

SKI & BOARD shows

Don’t forget the annual ski shows are coming to town. The shows feature exhibitor and sponsor booths showcasing a world of skiing and snowboarding with one-stop shopping of retail exhibitors showing the latest clothing and equipment.

Glen Plake is such a character!

You can volunteer to work the swap for free admittance and $8 an hour. Or you can also volunteer to man the council’s booth for free admittance. Or you can pay the price of entry and trade it in for a lift ticket to a local ski resort.

WATER SPORTS on the Colorado River
Pacific Rim joins the Radar River Rats at Park Moabi

It’s been an incredible water ski season so far this year. The sunsets, the sunrises, the clouds, the moons, the skiing and boarding, the food, the people were wonderful. For six weekends, Pacific Rim joined the Radar River Rats at Park Moabi on the Colorado River.

Our campsite was on the river with a hundred-yard private beach. Gene Fulkerson was our chef and as usual he was always trying to outdo himself. He now has everyone drooling over his fabulous garbage omelettes for Sunday brunch.

Over the course of the summer we had four boat drivers—Paul Jackson, Mark Mathis, Craig Henderson, Catherine Ohl. In addition, Troy and Seena would occasionally show up with their boat.

We had a surprise number of old timers turn up at the river—Ben and Sara Sterns arrived with their three kids. It’s been seventeen years (before kids) since they’re been out to the river.

Zac and Connie Hindricks brought their three-year-old twin girls. They are so cute. The Rivera/Leighton family showed up in numbers and brought Baily, Dallas, Logan, Maggie and their twin girls. What a blast.

The last trip of the year will perhaps be the best. More amazing sunrises and sunsets, unbelievable glass, Gene’s deep fried turkey and great friends.

Many thanks to the people who pitched in and helped trip after trip—Linda Newcomb-Mathis, Simone Beaudoin and Trudy Ferris.

USFS Approves Taos Expansion

The acting supervisor of the Carson National Forest in northern New Mexico has signed the Record of Decision for Taos Ski Valley’s Phase I projects in the Ski Area’s 2010 Master Development Plan. That includes two new lifts to access high alpine terrain and upgrades to existing lifts.

Other projects in the plan include construction of a permanent tubing facility, establishing a snowshoe trail system, and developing a lift-served mountain bike trail.

Breckenridge to get 500 Acres

The proposed development of Peak 6, the resort’s fifth mountain, has weathered the U.S. Forest Service approval process and recently received a final go-ahead after an appeal period ended in November 2012.

Although more litigation has been threatened, the Forest Service decision appeared solid enough for the resort to make a definitive commitment to getting Peak 6 operating in the 2013-2014 season.

Expansion down the Ten-Mile Range means five new alpine bowls and more than 500 new acres of both lift-served and hike-to-ski terrain — a 23 percent increase for the resort. The addition will be the first at the Summit County resort since Peak 10 came on line more than a decade ago.

Peak 6 will have 10 new trails, 13 runs that begin above treeline and the resort’s first above-timberline intermediate terrain. Access will be on a four-seat chairlift and a detachable six-seat chairlift from Peak 7. A new warming hut will sit atop of the mountain, and plans call for a restroom facility at the mid-load location.

Resort officials had to fight a long bureaucratic and political battle for the expansion. Prime among opponents’ arguments was protection for the endangered Canadian lynx and the prospect of cutting down healthy trees in light of the devastating pine beetle infestation that killed all the lodge pole pine in Summit County and farther north.

Owned by Vail Resorts, Breckenridge is among the most-visited resorts in the United States, with about 1.6 million skier-days recorded in recent years.

Red Mountain expansion

Red Mountain Resort, located on BC’s “Powder Highway” near Rossland, BC, has begun a two-year expansion called Grey Mountain. By the time they are finished with this project, they will have added almost 1,000 more acres of lift-serviced terrain to the resort. Grey Mountain itself is larger than many resorts in North America. They are in the process of building 22 new runs that will expand Red by 60 percent.

To make sure the new runs are as amazing as existing terrain, Red has deployed their run development team, a group of local experienced skiers and boarders who are professionals in all aspects of resort planning and development. Reports from the field are that the new runs look stellar.

Cat skiing will be available on Grey Mountain for the 2012-2013 season. Lift service will be available beginning in December 2013.

Red has updated their plans a bit and purchased a larger Piston Bulley Snowcat — complete with a tricked-out cabin that seats twelve — to shuttle skiers and riders to the peak of Grey while they finish their extensive terrain expansion.
NBC, U.S. Ski Team Partner On Live Coverage

The U.S. Ski Team and NBC Sports Network will partner for first-ever U.S. live TV broadcasts of Audi FIS Alpine World Cup ski racing as part of a pre-Sochi broadcast schedule announced by the network and the U.S. Ski and Snowboard Association.

The live coverage will feature Olympic champions Lindsey Vonn and Julia Mancuso from the Nature Valley Aspen Winternational Thanksgiving weekend along with fellow Olympic gold medalists Ted Ligety and Bode Miller at the Audi Birds of Prey World Cup in Beaver Creek, CO, a week later.

It’s part of an extensive coverage package between NBC and the U.S. Ski and Snowboard Association including 11 hours on NBC and 22 on NBC Sports Network.

Environmental Groups To Buy Royal Gorge

According to the Modesto Bee, a coalition of environmental groups will get together to buy the almost 3,000-acre Royal Gorge Cross Country Ski Resort in California. Royal Gorge was put on the block after the area defaulted on its $16.7 million loan in June 2011.

After spending the last year in receivership, Douglas Wilson Cos., the receiver, agreed to sell the property to conservation groups Truckee Donner Land Trust, The Trust for Public Land and the Northern Sierra Partnership for $11.25 million.

The groups have until December to raise the necessary funds, plus $2.25 million more for trail improvements and forest maintenance.

Wildfire Closes Snow King Summer Operations

The Little Horsethief Fire south of Jackson has burned at least 1,500 acres, prompting Snow King resort to close its summer operations, including the bike and hiking trails, lifts, and alpine slide.

The blaze started near the Little Horsethief subdivision, south of the town of Jackson. The fire has burned to the northeast, in largely uninhabited and rough terrain.

The Jackson Hole resort is not impacted by the blaze, and all highways in and out of Jackson remain open.

A-Basin Unveils Master Plan

Arapahoe Basin, CO, introduced a long-term master development plan, kicking off what will likely be a years-long process.

The plan includes an expansion of 412 acres into The Beavers, a new lift to access the terrain, a year-round zipline, increased capacity for its snowmaking reservoirs and several lift upgrades.

The public meeting is a first step for Arapahoe Basin, which operates within the White River National Forest.

Ski Boot Review

Scarpa upgraded the Maestrale, which was already a good boot, and made it bad ass. The flex is notably stiffer, but the boot didn’t gain any significant weight.

The Maestrale RS (female version: the Gea RS) which is billed as The lightest 120 flex ski boot in the world. The RS’s are filling the gap between alpine ski touring and freeride. They weigh in at a shade over 3.5 lbs. which is pretty impressive. They also have an amazing amount of flex when skinning up hill and the buckles are pretty light yet not too hard to use.
Amid a slew of special events involving everything from music to mud, resorts across the U.S. have added and expanded facilities for mountain biking and adventuring in the treetops. Ziplines, canopy tours, and adventure parks have become a hot trend. Often, these are being coupled with Segway tours, bag jumps, disc golf, and such old-school summer options as bungee trampolines and climbing walls.

Here’s a look at what’s happening.

New Adventure Parks & Tours
• Mount Sunapee, NM, debuted its Adventure Park, which includes a Canopy Zip-Line Tour from the mountain summit and a Treetop Obstacle Course. It also added Segway tours and disc golf.

• Angel Fire, NM, has a new multi-station Summit Adventure Center anchored by a Zipline Adventure Tour, including its signature 1,600 tandem zipline that soars fifty stories above the ground on its peak-to-peak route. Milder courses suit the less adventurous. The Center also includes bungee trampolines, disc golf, horseshoes, and hiking trails.

• Devil’s Thumb Ranch, CO, has created an unusual High Lonesome zipline tour; it starts 25 to 30 minutes from the base area, and is reached by a military-style 12-passenger 4x4. Zips range in length from 370 to 1,600 feet, and are up to 78 feet above the ground. Guides explain local and resort history during the three-hour adventure.

• Angel Fire, NM, is developing a five-acre Aerial Adventure Park, with five course levels, in front of the base lodge. It was designed by Outdoor Ventures Group and is set to open Aug. 1. The resort also extended its separate zipline tours with the addition of a new 1,900-foot line, the longest at the area.

Expanded Parks and Tours
Other resorts have added to their existing base-area parks and attractions. Among them:
• Crested Butte, CO, has constructed the Trailhead Tree House Playground for kids, adjacent to its recently-developed Adventure Park. The Playground was built in partnership with the Trailhead Children’s Museum and other community supporters.

• Whitefish, MT, expanded its zipline offerings with a new 1,900-foot-line, its longest.

Mountain Bike Developments
Mountain bike expansions are spread across the country as well.
• Crested Butte, CO, bolstered it Evolution Bike Park with a new intermediate trail set to open this month, with a more advanced trail planned for later in the summer. Both add to the park’s 25 miles of trails.

• Angel Fire added several miles of beginner and intermediate trails, both downhill and cross-country, to its Bike Park. To further make mountain biking accessible to a wider audience, it is adding children’s rental bikes, bike clinics, skill centers, and multi-day camps.

• Canyons, Utah, expanded its Bike Park by adding two new flow trails, the more-difficult Dark Hollow trail and the White Rabbit, rated easiest, for a total of five flow trails. Existing trails have been reworked as well. To make it all more accessible, the resort has added quick-loading Deason Built carriers to two lifts and launched a Bike Academy.

• Whitefish hopes to construct two new freeride trails, each with more than 2,000 vertical drop, and a total of 4.6 miles of new trails, pending Forest Service approval.

Next on the Horizon…
Who knows what other activities will take hold in the mountains? No one, which is why it’s encouraging to see resorts explore new possibilities.

Your Responsibility Code

Skiing can be enjoyed in many ways. At ski areas you may see people using alpine, snowboard, telemark, snow bikes, cross country and other specialized ski equipment, such as that used by disabled or other skiers.

Regardless of how you decide to enjoy the slopes, always show courtesy to others and be aware that there are elements of risk in skiing that common sense and personal awareness can help reduce.

Observe the code listed below and share with other skiers the responsibility for a great skiing experience.

The Code

• Always stay in control, and be able to stop or avoid other people or objects.

• People ahead of you have the right of way. It is your responsibility to avoid them.

• You must not stop where you obstruct a trail, or are not visible from above.

• Whenever starting downhill or merging into a trail, look uphill and yield to others.

• Always use devices to help prevent runaway equipment.

• Observe all posted signs and warnings. Keep off closed trails and out of closed areas.

• Prior to using any lift, you must have the knowledge and ability to load, ride and unload safely.

• LOOK before you leap. Make sure the slope is clear before you jump.

• Do not use the slopes if you are under the influence.

The Consequences

At each and every ski resort, this Skier Responsibility Code is taken very seriously. Any failure to ski responsibly, and to use good judgment and common sense, can result in the revocation of skiing privileges. There typically isn’t much tolerance for those who disobey the rules. Be aware, that in many cases, state law becomes involved in flagrant violation of boundary restrictions and unreported collisions.

WORKOUT to get ready for winter

It’s not too late to get fired up and start those ski workouts today.

Excerpted from about.com

Ball Knee Lift
Place your hands shoulder-width apart on an exercise ball. Tighten your abs & straighten your legs behind you so your body is in a straight line from your head to your heels. Bring your left knee as close to your chest as you can, keeping the rest of your body still. Return to the starting position, then bring your right knee toward your chest. Continue alternating legs. Do 10 reps per side.

Frog Legs
Sit on a bench. Lean back so that your upper body is at a 45-degree angle to the bench. Place your hands to the outside of your buttocks. Tighten your abs, lift your feet and place your soles together, pointing your knees outward. Slowly straighten your legs, keeping your upper body still (let your feet roll so the sides are touching). Return to the starting position. Do 20 reps.

Cable Run
Attach two resistance bands to a stable point at about chest level. Stand with your back to the attachment points, and hold one cable in each hand. Walk forward until the cables are taut. Run forward for three strides, then backward for three strides. Continue for 30 seconds. Rest for one minute. Do two to four more intervals.

Inchworm
Start in a push-up position. Keep your abs tight, your palms flat and your neck in a neutral position. Take small steps forward, keeping your legs straight until your feet are as close to your hands as possible without bending your knees. Then walk forward with your hands until you’ve returned to the starting position. Do 10 reps.

Single-Leg Stair Hops
This is an advanced drill. Attempt it only if you’re accustomed to plyometric exercises. Stand on your right foot with a staircase to your right. Hop up sideways to the first stair. Pause for one second, and then hop to the second stair. Ascend five to 10 stairs. Walk down, rest for two minutes and then repeat using your left foot. Do two sets.

Single-leg Rotation
Stand on one leg, hold a medicine ball with both hands, and extend your arms in front of your chest. Keep your arms and right leg still, and turn your shoulders as far as you can to the right. Then turn them as far as you can to the left for one repetition. Do 10 to 15 reps, then switch legs.
1938: Ski area’s original base area is established in Hart Prairie. A rope tow, powered by a car engine, pulls skiers uphill.

1952: The base lodge is destroyed by fire.

1954: Road leading to ski area is extended to the site of the Agassiz Lodge. Agassiz Lodge is built in 1956. Two more lifts are added in 1958 and 1962, but little else is developed.

1970: Summit Properties purchases the area with plans for a base village, however, a land-use plan issued in 1971 restricts development to the existing permit area.

1977: Northland Recreation purchases the ski area and files a master plan to develop the area.

1979: The U.S. Forest Service approves a commercial ski area with new lifts, trails and facilities. Dick and Jean Wilson, the Navajo Medicine Men’s Association, and the Hopi Tribe subsequently sue Interior Secretary John Block.

1982: The Hart Prairie chair lift is built. In November, Fairfield Communities purchase area and begins a plan in 1983 that includes the construction of Hart Prairie Lodge, the Sunset chair lift and transfer of the rope tow back to Hart Prairie.

1983: The U.S. Supreme Court declines to hear arguments from Wilson, the medicine men, and the Hopi Tribe. That action affirms the lower courts’ decisions and clears the way for more development of the commercial ski area.

1984: Congress creates the Kachina Peaks Wilderness outside the ski area boundaries.

1988: The U.S. Supreme Court hears a case of multiple California tribes objecting to road construction and logging in U.S. Forest Service areas they want left undisturbed. In a 5-3 ruling, the justices say the federal government is not violating the tribes’ religious beliefs because it does not coerce the tribal members themselves to do something contrary to their beliefs.

1992: Arizona Snowbowl Limited Partnership buys the ski area, expands Hart Prairie Lodge and adds a guest service office, a rental shop and a children’s ski school. Trail improvements are also made.

1997: The U.S. Supreme Court strikes down a section of the Religious Freedom Restoration Act as it applies to states’ rights after an archbishop in Texas attempts to tell local zoning officials it would be infringing on his religion to forbid him to expand his church building. It remains for federal use.

2000: The San Francisco Peaks are designated a Traditional Cultural Property, which allows it to be eligible for consideration as an official National Historic Register site.

2001: Snowbowl files an application for development, snowmaking with the U.S. Forest Service.

2002: Flagstaff City Council agrees to sell 1.5 million gallons of reclaimed wastewater per day during the winter months to Arizona Snowbowl, signing a contract with the business.

2004: The Coconino National Forest releases an environmental study of the proposed changes for public comment. It receives almost 10,000 comments.

2005: Coconino National Forest approves snowmaking with reclaimed wastewater at Arizona Snowbowl. Tribes and environmental groups file suit against the U.S. Forest Service.

2006: A U.S. district judge upholds the Forest Service’s decision to allow snowmaking. Plaintiffs subsequently appeal the decision to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Attorneys for the tribes argue the proposed upgrade desecrates sacred land.

2007: In March, a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rules Arizona Snowbowl operators cannot use reclaimed wastewater to make snow.

2007: In October, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decides to rehear the case en banc, or with 11 judges.

2008: In August, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals says Arizona Snowbowl can make snow with reclaimed water, and go ahead with other improvements, despite tribal objections.

2009: In January, tribes ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review the 9th Circuit’s approval of Snowbowl’s development. Tribes argue the further expansion of the ski area is in substantial conflict with religious beliefs.

2009: In June, U.S. Supreme Court declines to hear the case. This means the 11-judge decision of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals stands, allowing snowmaking to commence.
During the week of April 8–15, 2013, the International Skiing History Association (ISHA) will visit one of America’s Premier Mountain Resorts: Vail.

This once-in-a-lifetime gathering will be full of skiing, parties, entertainment, reunions with old and new friends, snowboarding, film showings, etc.

There will also be a number of special events and activities taking place throughout the week as part of International Skiing History Association’s annual gathering including ISHA’s Award Banquet.

The week will also be the site of the 3rd Annual Ishpeming International Film Festival of classic ski films. The week’s highlight will be The Hall of Fame’s Annual Induction Ceremony, on Saturday evening, April 14, 2013, which will also include a special tribute to the “Pioneers of Professional Ski Racing”.

Vail Marriott Mountain Resort has an unbelievable rate of $137 per room per night. To book a room call 800-648-0720 and mention you’re with ISHA/Ski Hall of Fame.

There are three levels of participation:

1. “All-Access” pass costs $350 and gets you admission to the various receptions, film showings and the U.S. Ski & Snowboard Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony.

2. “Premier All-Access” pass costs $595 and gets you all of the above plus admission to all ISHA events.

3. The Ski Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony is available for $300 per person, $500 per couple, $2500 per table of ten.

For more information visit http://www.skihall.com and click on “Skiing Heritage Week Vail 2013” found in the sidebar on the left.

Since its founding in 1976, the Colorado Ski & Snowboard Museum has been passionately dedicated to safeguarding the spirit and evolution of snow sports and their contribution to Colorado’s history.
GOOD STUFF for the kids & grandkids

Kids Alpine Ski Equipment: Should you Rent or Buy?

Every ski season, parents throughout ski country face the same dilemma. Should they buy or rent skis for their kids? This is a decision that should not be taken lightly.

On the one hand, you might be anxious to have your kids get involved with the sport. In the long run, owning a pair of skis will turn out to be less expensive than renting.

However, not all kids take to the sport immediately. If you invest in a pair of skis that sit in the closet, you’ve wasted your money.

Unfortunately, it gets even more complicated. One of the reasons that many kids end up hating skiing is because the ski and boot rental process is a total disaster. The lines are often eternal, and kids get restless. In many cases, the kids end up in equipment that does not fit correctly. As a result, they spend the entire day in the lounge.

Equipment Compromise

Here are some compromises that might offer a viable solution. Your first step is to research the various ski schools that offer specialized lift, lesson and equipment packages for kids.

Ask advice from other parents. Sometimes, you can get valuable feedback from message forums such as Epicski.com.

If possible, visit the suggested ski areas and check out the rental areas. Is the staff truly interested in giving the kids the best fit?

Watch the kids classes on the hill. Do the kids seem comfortable? Is there more than one kid crying that his or her feet hurt? Take these observations into account before committing your child to a class.

Once your kids have attended about three sessions, you will be able to determine whether they will stay committed to the sport. Then you should consider buying equipment.

In rare cases, your kids might have found the rental equipment quite comfortable. If that’s the case, check the rental shop at the end of the season. They will often sell their rental equipment at a significant discount.

EQUIPMENT for kids

Nothing can be more joyful than watching toddlers make their way down the slopes. In fact, having your kids learn to ski at an early age might even help them develop better balance and movement patterns for life. However, they need to like the experience, and nothing is more detrimental to a child’s enjoyment of the slopes than ill fitting equipment.

If you consider the fact that most kids have a lower pain threshold than adults, you will realize the importance of making an informed decision about their ski equipment.

While many children’s ski instructors have conflicting views about kids’ equipment, there are some basic points on which they agree. For example, most pros agree that skis for beginners should be about chin length. As your child’s skills improve, he or she can handle a length between the chin and the nose.

Of course, if you are buying kid’s ski gear at the end of the season, you will have to keep in mind that your child might have a major growth spurt in the summer. Your best bet would be to wait for the fall.

Warren Miller’s Flow State: Teaser

The sixty third feature film from Warren Miller Entertainment brings audiences to a place only recently identified by scientists; a place they now understand skiers and snowboarders achieve where, the faster they go physically, the slower things appear to them mentally. This a place of such singular focus and connection with their environment, they can achieve things previously thought impossible. So come with us as we enter … the Flow State.

You can view a teaser at on you tube at http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UVQZ_oUwsbw/

I’m sure you’ll want to see it when it’s hits a theater near you. Check the listing for California showings.

Hope on the Slopes

The goal of Hope on the Slopes is to not only have fun, but also raise money for the American Cancer Society, helping in its mission to eliminate cancer.

Pledges raised through Hope on the Slopes help provide cancer patients and their families with information and support, fund research that leads to improved treatments, educate the public about cancer prevention and early detection, and help ensure that everyone has access to lifesaving cancer screenings.

Hope on the Slopes is a team and individual 24-hour skiing event held at various ski resorts around the country. Participants engage in a virtual competition with other Hope on the Slopes participants in two categories: Dollars Raised and Vertical Feet.

To volunteer visit unrecables.org or email info@unrecables.org.

Recycle Program

Pacific Rim recycles cans, bottles and glass at all our events. Each quarter we donate the proceeds to a charity. This quarter’s donation goes to the Hope on the Slopes.

USARC

United States Adaptive Recreation Center (USARC) is committed to guiding people with disabilities toward the creation and affirmation of rewarding lifestyles. Located in Big Bear, CA, USARC runs an adaptive ski school in the winter. In the summer USARC takes to the fresh waters of Big Bear Lake for wet and wild adaptive water skiing, jet skiing, kayaking, sailing and fishing.

Volunteers are always needed. Volunteers must be at least 18 years old; intermediate skiers, water sports enthusiasts, or mountain bikers; able to complete the required training criteria, and available to teach midweek during winter or summer.

To volunteer contact Sara Richter, Outreach Coordinator, sara@usarc.org.

Wounded Warrior Project

Wounded Warrior Project serves veterans and service members who incurred a physical or mental injury, illness, or wound, co-incident to their military service on or after September 11, 2001 and their families. With advancements in battlefield medicine and body armor, an unprecedented percentage of service members are surviving severe wounds or injuries.

To donate visit https://support.woundedwarriorproject.org/.

JOHN JAMES— His story may save someone’s life as it did his.

Stroke Awareness & Response Leads to Complete Recovery

Glendale Adventist Medical Center (GAMC) is honored to be the only hospital in all of Los Angeles County to achieve a Joint Commission Certification as a Primary Stroke Center and a certification as a Chest Pain Center as well as other advanced certifications.

The high-level certifications mean that GAMC has processes in place to ensure our community gets the care they need close to home. Take for instance the story of John James.

While eating breakfast getting ready for a doctor’s appointment, John suddenly felt the right side of his body lose strength and spasm. His wife realized that weakness on one side of the body was a symptom of a stroke and immediately called 9-1-1.

EMS brought him to the closed Certified Advanced Primary Stroke Center, GAMC. Within minutes of John’s arrival, Dr. David Thompson, a GAMC neurologist and integral part of the stoke team, had already met with John and John’s wife Karen. The rapid completion of diagnostic testing enabled the GAMC stroke team to immediately administer TPA (Tissue Plasminogen Activator), to dissolve the blood clot that was causing the stroke by preventing blood flow into John’s brain.

For stroke patients like John, getting quick treatment at an Advanced Primary Stoke Center close to home means a life saved without any permanent disabilities. Minutes following the administration of TPA, John’s right side began to improve dramatically and his speech started to make sense.

His wife, who stayed with him throughout his treatment saw the miraculous change within minutes.

Only three days after what could have been a life-altering condition, he left the hospital completely recovered.

“John’s story is extraordinary and the perfect example of how a knowledgeable and dedicated stroke team like the one at Glendale Adventist Medical Center could change the outcome of one man’s life,” says Dr. Thompson.
The PACIFIC RIM ALLIANCE is a non-profit organization dedicated to the appreciation of skiing, snowboarding, sight-seeing, photography, travel, public affairs and civic awareness. The Alliance is further oriented to the building of international relations among skiers, snowboarders and sports organizations throughout the Pacific Rim.

Surplus moneys above requirements for deposits for future trips will be donated to non-profit organizations devoted to charity, research & education. We are especially interested in, but not limited to, supporting Ski Area Development, Adaptive Ski Programs, Jimmie Heuga Center for MS and Olympic & Junior Racers, Mammoth Ski Museum.

The Alliance is a member of San Diego Council of Ski Clubs (SDCSC), Los Angeles Council of Ski Clubs (LAC), Far West Ski Association (FWSA) and National Ski Council Federation (NSCF). Membership in Pac Rim allows you to participate in their events and programs.
